Both prevention and treatment providers in several states have leveraged these recent recognitions to get CLFC-based programming approved for reimbursement through Medicaid and other insurance options. In the future, it will be interesting to see if these CLFC services might be reimbursable in criminal justice and reentry settings. If you or your professional agency is interested in pursuing third-party billing for CLFC Program Implementation, we can help. In concert with one successful entity billing for CLFC-related services we have developed a sample template document that describes how an organization can successfully bill third-party providers for CLFC services. Professionals can use this template as a guide in setting up this process in their own state. This template is available through Resilient Futures Network. Anyone interested in seeking assistance in adapting the Creating Lasting Family Connections® (CLFC) Program into a therapeutic design are encouraged to contact Teresa Boyd Strader of COPES, Inc. and the Resilient Futures Network, LLC. at 502-897-1111 or by email at teresastraderrfn@gmail.com.
